

NHS Equality Impact Assessments from PTI;
the thought leaders in diversity and inclusion

Imagine the knock-on effects if your organisation fell foul of the latest equality legislation...

Let PTI's specialist approach to NHS Equality Impact Assessments ensure your services, policies and practices don't cause major upset

We're sure that you are already familiar with the legal imperatives explaining why Equality Impact Assessments need to be done.

And given the potential penalties of getting it wrong, you will also know that an EqlA needs to be done methodically and professionally, even though the scale of the process can sometimes be daunting....

So, how can you find time to develop a robust approach to EqlA with training that can help guarantee your Trust's efforts won't be toppled by discriminatory strategies and services? How can you be sure your Trust's policies and practices won't fall short in a regulatory audit?

Leading insight and expertise from PTI

At PTI, we've been designing and applying EqlA training programmes, strategies and processes across the NHS for nearly 10 years, using some of the finest minds and facilitators in the field. Our intelligence is sector-specific and our methodology is comprehensive, yet flexible.

Now is the time to make sure your organisation's EqlA will stand up to scrutiny.

Call PTI director Tony Burnett today and we'll assess how well your Trust performs against its equality duties, and how to mitigate any risks we find.

It's our people that makes EqlA come alive. So we asked Performance Through Inclusion to design and deliver training on our EqlA process to over 200 staff. We needed PTI to pass on their expert skills and insight for staff to complete their own EqlAs, to help ensure the process is embedded into our everyday operations.

The training was well evaluated by our staff and PTI completed all phases of the training on time and to budget.

So with results like these, we are very happy to recommend them to other healthcare providers and we've been delighted with the outcome.
